Resourcing Services

Ameritas Resourcing offers a strategic resourcing service, providing professional IT staffing solutions to the technology, financial, government and commercial markets.

We have a history of successfully delivering high quality IT specialists to our clients, not only in the UK, but across Europe. Whether you are looking for one consultant, an entire project team, or a complete managed resourcing service, Ameritas can satisfy your requirements.

Resourcing specialist IT requirements

The key benefit of Ameritas Resourcing is our ability to find the personnel who can make the difference between the success and failure of a project such as

- Programme managers
- Project managers
- Business analysts
- Team leaders
- Technical architects
- Technology specialists

Whether the people you need are technology specialists or business experts, we will find you the candidates with the right skills and attitudes to ensure the success of your enterprise.

In this activity we are happy to work with either your own HR department or independently to resource all your requirements for specialist IT staff, whether permanent or contract

Resourcing Solution Service

The main problems our clients experience when building their technical teams are:

- The constant change in skill requirements;
- The difficulty in matching the best resources to their skills gap;
- The difficulty in securing these skills, coupled with the amount of time needed to interview relevant candidates;
- The cost of keeping pace with evolving technologies and the peaks and troughs of sales demand, which can make recruitment particularly difficult.

Through our Resourcing Solution Service, Ameritas can provide a managed service for the recruitment of both permanent and non-permanent staff. This service can be tailored to your requirements; for example you may want us to handle your entire IT recruitment process. Alternatively, you may prefer to come to us with a particular set of requirements such as managing a programme to recruit scarce IT resources or developing a training programme for existing staff.

Whatever your resourcing needs, Ameritas can provide you with a high quality service, tailored to your requirements.

European and Overseas IT Resourcing

Increasingly, specialist skills may not be available in the local marketplace. At Ameritas, we have a proven ability to select candidates from the global resource pool.

Whether you are looking for candidates from overseas to work in Europe or seeking European candidates with particular language skills, Ameritas can find the staff you need and assist with any relocation and work permit issues.

We have experience of recruiting overseas staff to work in both the UK and a range of other European countries. Our global contacts mean that we can find the best candidates from around the world including those with particular spoken and written language skills.

Moving from one European country to another or relocating to Europe from another continent is not always a straightforward process. At Ameritas we aim to minimise the difficulties by offering our clients assistance with visas and work permits as well as information and practical help on relocation.

Why use Ameritas Resourcing?

We have an excellent track record in recruiting high quality resources for our clients both in the UK and elsewhere in Europe.

We have a reputation for providing the right resources at the time and place that they are needed.

We understand your technical requirements. All of the Ameritas management team have a background in Information Technology and this, we believe, gives us an advantage in the selection of suitable candidates for the IT industry.

Ameritas' consultancy origin means that we are able to understand our clients' requirements in depth. This also means that we can provide either our own consultants or other specialist contract staff on a short, medium or long term basis to fill any skills gaps.

Our expertise in overseas recruitment and resourcing means that we have access to a global pool of specialist IT resources. Not only can we help you find the best technical people, we will also find you those specialists who have the language skills you need.
